You are invited to a Waka Toa Ora seminar:

Preparing for Omicron

An update for community organisations from
Community and Public Health

What can communities do to prepare for Omicron? How do we ensure equitable outcomes for those most at risk?

Community and Public Health staff have been at the forefront of the pandemic response for the past two years. This hui is an opportunity to hear what the impacts of community transmission of Omicron are likely to be, and how organisations and communities across Canterbury might prepare, and work for equitable outcomes.

There will be short presentations on the likely impact of Omicron regionally, followed by opportunities for groups to explore possible strategies for preparedness and equity.

Tuesday 25th January 2022

2pm - 3pm

Online via Zoom

(for those unable to make this time, a recording will be available)
